Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 17 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Mostly cloudy overnight but plenty of sunny spells for Thursday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Remaining dry through the evening, with clear spells for many areas before cloud builds across much of the region overnight. Clearer skies across much of Cumbria. Light winds throughout and feeling cool. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Thursday:
A bright start in the north but cloudy elsewhere. A fine and dry day following, with plenty of sunny spells. Feeling warm in any sunshine, with winds increasing slightly. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
After a damp start, drier and brighter conditions follow on Friday. The weekend staying generally dry and cloudy with light rain or drizzle. Pleasant in any sunshine, otherwise rather cool.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.